

Relentlessness is a word to describe people who don't give up on their goals and relentless people also trust their instincts. Relentless people like to chase their goals with limited interruption. Relentlessness is a good trait because those who express the trait don't give up very easily and those who are relentless strive to figure out problems and don't stop til the problem is solved.